Ghost Dance (Tulsa Thunderbirds Book 3)

Synopsis

USA Today bestselling author Catherine Gayle presents another novel in the sexy Tulsa Thunderbirds hockey romance series. He had it all. And lost it in an instant. The night Dmitri Nazarenko won hockey's Holy Grail, he lost more than he ever bargained for. With a world of guilt weighing him down, Dima can never forgive himself for his tragic misjudgment. Turning his body into a shrine of past mistakes, he hides behind tattoos that memorialize his failures and a beard that masks his pain. But London Hawke sees right through him. The fiery woman refuses to pity a man like him. No stranger to incurable injuries, London lets nothing stand in the way of living her life. Seeing an able-bodied man haunted by the ghosts of his past is a surefire way to trigger her annoyance, and that's exactly what she finds in Dima. When they face off, it becomes a battle of wills. Their constant bickering turns to an unavoidable dance between the sheets. But she won't accept sharing a bed with the past for long. Will Dima learn to fight his demons, or will London leave him to dance with his ghosts alone?

Customer Reviews

This book along with all the rest of her books in both of her series, is exactly why I love Catherine Gayle. She's not afraid to touch on subjects that would send most people running for the hills, and she does a very excellent job of it, too. Her books are about the game of hockey, but the players and their families are a very tight knit group. They are like one big happy family, and just like most families, they unconditionally except one another, flaws and all. I did notice that according to the 'Print Read', this story is 350 pages long. But you couldn't prove it by me.... because I was so deeply enthralled in this story, that I found myself zipping through this story in what seemed like no time at all. I couldn't even make myself put it down long enough to eat, it was just that good! At first glance London seems to have it all put together in life, but underneath it all she's still trying to come to terms with living the rest of her life as a Paraplegic. She feels the only way she'll be able to handle things in her life, is if she's in complete control of every single aspect. Dmitri is suffering from survivor's guilt, after a car accident in which he was driving while highly intoxicated, ended up costing his best friend/ brother/ teammate his leg and his career as a major league hockey player, all at the same time. Dmitri melted my heart completely with his nightly rituals with little Harper. He comes off as this big bad Russian, but underneath it all he's just a big ole teddy bear with a heart of gold. My heart went out to London, too. I can't even imagine what it would be like to have it all, and in the blink of an eye your life as you knew it was gone. But I had to admire her for not letting her disability rule her life, too.
